

North Carolina Central University
“Communicating to Succeed”
School of Education

The School of Education’s Vision: To become an international community of scholars who are culturally responsive educators and practitioners

MISSION

The mission of North Carolina Central University is to prepare students academically and professionally to become leaders to advance consciousness of social responsibility in a diverse, global society. In accordance with the larger institution, the mission of the North Carolina Central School of Education is “to prepare educational professionals to serve and inspire excellence in teaching, administration, counseling, communication, technology, community outreach, and other related services”. Central to this aim is “the development of leaders who promote social justice and dedicate themselves to the well-being of a global society”. The Counselor Education Program prepares counselors to work in mental health, school, and career counseling settings who promote social justice and responsibility, serve as leaders in a diverse and global community, and respond to the complexity of human needs across the lifespan. To this end, the program emphasizes increasing awareness, knowledge, and skills in interacting with economically, socially, and culturally diverse populations. Our partnerships with local agencies and schools foster an understanding of multicultural and diverse populations and counseling interventions that promote empowerment.

Course Description:

This course will provide elective specialized instruction for students in a variety of clinical disciplines within the university. This course is designed to present contemporary best practice interventions in events of crisis, grief, and trauma. Students will synthesize research and practice models for working with individuals of varying ages (pre-school to elder life stages). The course will also examine counseling methods for intervening with diverse families and groups. The class will heavily utilize case examples to demonstrate and model best practice with those affected by crisis, grief, and trauma and will include individual, group, family, and community interventions.

Expanded Course Information:

This course may be used as an elective for counseling students and NCCU students in other clinical programs such as communications disorders, psychology, and social work. This course is based upon a broad conceptualization of personal loss/trauma and grief as a generic experience resulting from a variety of changes throughout the lifespan. Personal loss is therefore defined in this course as “any experience across the lifespan that demands the surrender of something personally significant and/or familiar”. This grounding loss definition teaches students to recognize multiple client issues as concerns of loss, including but not limited to death events. Personal loss is an inevitable and universal human experience with the power to imprint its impact upon an individual’s life and become an influencing factor in his/her development. The influence either promotes or retards development, functioning, and resilience depending upon how loss is accommodated and incorporated into the psychological structure of the affected individual.

This course assumes a familial and environmental context of grieving. The course is founded upon the premise of an individual’s evolving personal narrative, a social story of identity and meaning within one’s life. Loss reconciliation unfolds when an individual can successfully expand the narrative to add greater depth of meaning of life experiences, including those of grief and trauma. This is not a sociology course on death and dying. The spirit of the class is to teach clinical persons the best intervention practices in client issues of personal trauma, crisis, and grief.

As reflective practitioners, I encourage each of us to come to know our own grief sources and processes and to reflect upon how we can engage in helping others heal. We will experiment with some means for encouraging grief expression in ourselves and in our clients. While it is healthy, appropriate, and unavoidable to reflect upon the learning from our own lives, it is critical to understand the educational intention of this context. Personal experiences can be rich illustrations of the content of the class. Confronting our own grief allows us to presence with others in an uncontaminated way. This is, however, an educational learning environment that is separate from a more therapeutic method of assisting with a personal grief journey. As the instructor, I assume the responsibility of protecting the educational goal of the course. Should you find yourself in need of greater support regarding your own losses, please consult with the university counseling center or the instructor for outside referral options.

Methods of Teaching:

Students will learn through video lectures, reading, active interaction in the discussion boards, and through the use of a variety of technological instruction methodologies. The course will utilize online instruction through the Blackboard platform. Students will be expected to assume responsibility for independent learning. Students will be active learners as they demonstrate knowledge, competencies, and skills. It is my belief that learner success is linked to learner engagement. I strive to offer research-based knowledge, evidence-based practice interventions, higher order rigorous and reflective learning and to do so within the safety of an online community of learners.

CACREP Standards Addressed in Course:

This class responds to the counseling national standards listed in Section II. These include curricular experiences and demonstrated knowledge in the areas of roles and responsibilities as members of crisis management response teams (G.1.c); theories of transitions across the lifespan (G.3.a); effects of crises, disaster, & trauma events (G.3.c); understanding of developmental crises, disability, addictive behavior, psychopathology, and environmental factors as they affect both normal and abnormal behavior (G.3.f); and crisis intervention and suicide prevention models, including the use of psychological first aid strategies (G.5.g). Additionally, this course responds to the specialty standards for clinical mental health counseling including understanding of the impact of crises, disasters, and other trauma-causing events (A.9); understanding of the operation of an emergency management system (A.10); understanding of the principles of crisis intervention (C.6); understanding the appropriate use of diagnosis during crises (K.5); and differentiation between diagnosis and developmentally appropriate reactions to crises (L.3).

Specific Student Learning Outcomes and Assessments:

The content and experiences of this course are sequenced such that students will be able to:

- Discover and evaluate the effects of loss, crisis, and trauma events throughout the lifespan. This will be assessed through the case examples throughout the course. (CACREP G.3.c; CMHC A.9)
- Research & apply the contemporary clinical conceptualizations and major theoretical models of grief/trauma and crisis. This will be assessed through the written examinations, the assessments, and case examples throughout the course (CACREP G.5.g; CMHC C.6)
- Utilize developmentally appropriate best intervention practices/modalities across the lifespan with individuals, families, groups, and in the community. This will be assessed through examinations and case examples throughout the course. (CACREP G.3.a & f; CACREP G.5.g; CMHC K.5 & L.3)
- Apply diagnostic criteria and skills for distinguishing between issues of uncomplicated vs. complicated grief and grief counseling vs. grief therapy. This will be assessed through the trauma assessment and the case examples. (CMHC K.5 & L.3)

Specific Course Assignments and Evaluation Criteria:

- Readings: Each student will complete all assigned texts and other readings as given in class each week.

- Dispositions: Each student will demonstrate dispositions consistent with an inclusive, multicultural, and ethical professional role in promoting well-being, healthy relationships, academic success, and career mastery.
- Attendance: Each student is expected to complete all scheduled weekly activities and be prepared and willing to participate in discussion boards and class exercises. If you miss more than two weeks of assigned modules you will be dropped from the course. The last day to withdraw from a class with a WC grade is October 7th.
- Quizzes: Each student is expected to complete quizzes of a summary and reflective nature on assigned readings and content for particular weeks. These will begin with Week 2. No makeup quizzes will be offered. (all quizzes will equal 100 total points).
- Project: Each student is expected to successfully complete a final project (worth 100 total points – a rubric will be given).
- Class exercises: Each student is expected to complete five class assignments that relate to the major modules of the class. These will include assessment, individual, family, group, and community interventions. These will be assigned at strategic weeks during the semester. (these will total 125 total points, 25 points each).
- Discussion Boards/Reflections: Each student is expected to complete weekly discussions and personal reflections. Individual assignment of topics will be given each week. (These will total 200 points).

Grading Scale:

Written assignments will be weighted as follows:

Class exercises (5 @ 25 pts. each)	= 125 total Points
Quizzes	= 100 total Points
Final Project	= 100 total Points
Discussion Boards (10 points x 12 weeks)	= 200 total Points
Total Points	= 525 total Points

Final Grading on Written Assignments:

472 - 525 Total Points	=	A
420 - 471 Total Points	=	B
367 –419 Total Point	=	C

ACADEMIC HONESTY REMINDER:

North Carolina Central University views academic honesty as a critical value protecting the transmission of knowledge. Academic dishonesty is a serious violation and includes providing/receiving unauthorized assistance with papers, projects, and exams; presenting, as one's own, another's words/ideas without acknowledgement; presenting the same papers/projects for credit in two classes without explicit professor permission; and using undocumented internet information. Academic dishonesty will result in a grade of "F" in the course.

Student Disability Services

Students with disabilities (physical, learning, psychological, chronic medical, etc.) who would like to request accommodations and services are required to register with the Office of Student Disability Services (SDS) in Suite 120 in the Student Services Building. Please contact the SDS Staff at (919) 530-6325 or email sds@nccu.edu. If you are NEW to SDS, please contact the office for an appointment. If you had accommodations previously, you can resubmit a request by visiting our website at www.nccu.edu/sds and clicking on the Accommodate Link. Students are expected to update their accommodations each semester, preferably during the first 2 weeks of each semester.

Student Support/Ombudsperson

The Student Ombudsperson is available to assist students in navigating unexpected life events, (e.g. short-term illness/injury, loss of a loved one, personal crises) and guide them to the appropriate University or community resources. Students may also receive assistance with resolving some emergency financial concerns, understanding NCCU policies or general problem-solving strategies. Schedule an appointment by contacting the Student Ombudsperson in the Office of the Dean of Students, G-06 Student Services Building, at (919) 530-7492 or bsimmons@nccu.edu.

VETERANS SERVICES:

One of the goals of the faculty and the NCCU Veterans Affairs Office's (VAO) is to provide a welcoming and supportive learning experience for veterans. Specifically, the VAO's primary goal is to provide a smooth transition from military to college life for veterans, service members, and dependents. If you wish, please contact your professor and/or the Director of the VAO during the first weeks of class so that we may support and assist you. During your matriculation, the VAO is here to assist you with the VA Educational Benefits process and offer overall support to ensure academic progression towards graduation. For more information please contact the VAO at 919-530-5000 or veteransaffairs@nccu.edu.

BLACKBOARD:

This class will utilize the campus "Blackboard" system. Every student will be set up with a username and password (if you don't already have one). You will be required to log on to the Blackboard system in order to fulfill all assignments during the semester (e.g., complete discussion boards, submit assignments, obtain handouts). If you have questions about your Blackboard (Bb) account, please call Bb or the IT department first at 919-530-7676. The instructor will use only your NCCU email address for contact.

FOLIOTEK:

Foliotek is the electronic system for housing samples of your best work used by the School of Education and our Department. The Counseling Program students ONLY will be required to upload assignments into their electronic Foliotek portfolio. However, because this particular class is taken only for elective credit, there are no required foliotek assignments associated with this course.

TENTATIVE CLASS SCHEDULE & TOPICS (subject to change by instructor).

The class weeks will run from the first Sunday night at 11:59 pm (August 14th) until the following Sunday night at 11:59 pm. Under course content, assignments, readings, handouts, journal explanations, & videos will be organized by weeks. What is listed here is a topical outline. Weekly readings, discussions, quizzes, and other assignments will be posted for that particular week under course content. I intentionally set this up so you cannot work ahead of the week's assignments. Please pace yourself so that you stay on schedule as the material unfolds.
