

North Carolina Central University
“Communicating to Succeed”
School of Education

The School of Education’s Vision: To become an international community of scholars who are culturally responsive educators and practitioners.

MISSION

The mission of North Carolina Central University is to prepare students academically and professionally to become leaders to advance consciousness of social responsibility in a diverse, global society. In accordance with the larger institution, the mission of the North Carolina Central School of Education is “to prepare educational professionals to serve and inspire excellence in teaching, administration, counseling, communication, technology, community outreach, and other related services”. Central to this aim is “the development of leaders who promote social justice and dedicate themselves to the well-being of a global society”. The Counselor Education Program prepares counselors to work in mental health, school, and career counseling settings who promote social justice and responsibility, serve as leaders in a diverse and global community, and respond to the complexity of human needs across the lifespan. To this end, the program emphasizes increasing awareness, knowledge, and skills in interacting with economically, socially, and culturally diverse populations. Our partnerships with local agencies and schools foster an understanding of multicultural and diverse populations and counseling interventions that promote empowerment.

Course Description:

CON 5350 is designed to present contemporary best practice concepts and interventions in events of crisis, grief, and trauma. This is a required course for students in the school counseling track and therefore has a focus around school-aged children and school crisis response. This course synthesizes research and practice models for working with school settings, intervening with cultural competence, and practicing with individuals, groups, families, and communities impacted by these events. This course educates helping professionals in crisis response leadership, psychological first aid, and trauma-informed care principles and exposes students to valuable resources for counselors.

Expanded Course Information:

This course is based upon a broad conceptualization of personal loss/trauma and grief as a generic experience resulting from a variety of changes throughout the lifespan. Personal loss is therefore defined in this course as “any experience across the lifespan that demands the surrender of something personally significant and/or familiar”. This grounding loss definition teaches students to recognize multiple client issues as concerns of loss, including but not limited to death events. Personal loss is an inevitable and universal human experience with the power to imprint its impact upon an individual’s life and become an influencing factor in his/her development. The influence either promotes or retards development, functioning, and resilience depending upon how loss is accommodated and incorporated into the psychological structure of the affected individual.

This course assumes a familial, environmental, and developmental context of experiencing crisis, trauma, and grief. The course is founded upon the premise of an individual’s evolving personal narrative, a social story of identity and meaning within one’s life. Loss reconciliation unfolds when an individual can successfully expand the narrative to add greater depth of meaning of life experiences, including those of crisis, grief, and trauma. This is not a sociology course on death and dying. The arenas of crisis, trauma, & grief are wide and deep. We could address each of these situations in a separate class. However, students should know that a course of this nature is indeed rare in counseling programs and I am grateful NCCU offers required education on these topics.

“Reflective Practitioner” Idea:

The power of the material of this course often prompts recollection of very personal loss situations. As reflective practitioners, I encourage each of us to come to know our own loss sources and processes. We will experiment with some means for encouraging expression in ourselves and in our clients. While it is healthy, appropriate, and unavoidable to reflect upon the learning from our own lives, it is critical to understand the educational intention of this course. Personal experiences can be rich illustrations of the content of the class. Confronting our own losses allows us to presence with others in an uncontaminated way. This is, however, an educational learning environment that is separate from a more therapeutic method of assisting with a personal loss journey. As the instructor, I assume the responsibility of protecting the educational goal of the course. Should you find yourself in need of greater support regarding your own losses, please consult with the university counseling center or the instructor for outside referral options.

I am deeply concerned about your well-being, especially during this pandemic crisis. We are all overloaded with necessary adaptations and ambiguity about the future. This is a stressful time and I encourage you to pace yourself with small/attainable goals, to stay present-oriented so you don’t get ahead of yourself, and to let flexibility flow. Please engage in self-care every day!

Methods of Teaching:

Students will learn through video lectures, reading, active interaction in the discussion boards, and through the use of a variety of technological instruction methodologies. The course will utilize online instruction through the Blackboard platform. Students will be expected to assume responsibility for independent learning. Students will be active learners as they demonstrate knowledge, competencies, and skills. It is my belief that learner success is linked to learner engagement. I strive to offer research-based knowledge, evidence-based practice interventions, higher order rigorous and reflective learning and to do so within the safety of an online community of learners.

CACREP Counseling Standards Addressed in Course:

This class responds to the 2016 CACREP counseling national standards listed in Section 2. These include technology's impact on the counseling profession (F.1.j); self-care strategies appropriate to the counselor role (F.1.l); the impact of spiritual beliefs on clients' and counselors' worldview (F.2.g); biological, neurological, and physiological factors that affect human development, functioning, and behavior (F.3.e); effects of crisis, disasters, and trauma on diverse individuals across the lifespan (F.3.g); suicide prevention models and strategies (F.5.l); crisis intervention, trauma-informed, and community-based strategies, such as Psychological First Aid (F.5.m); and the use of assessments for diagnostic and intervention planning purposes (F.7.e).

Additionally, this course responds to the specialty standards for school counseling including school counselor roles in school leadership and multidisciplinary teams (G.2.d); school counselor roles and responsibilities in relation to the school emergency management plans, and crises, disasters, and trauma (G.2.e); and characteristics, risk factors, and warning signs of students at risk for mental health and behavioral disorders (G.2.g).

Specific Student Learning Outcomes and Assessments:

The content and experiences of this course are sequenced such that students will be able to:

- Discover and evaluate the effects of loss, crisis, and trauma events throughout the lifespan. This will be assessed through the case examples throughout the course. (CACREP 2. F.3.e; 2.F.3.g; SC G.2.g)
- Research & apply the contemporary clinical conceptualizations and major theoretical models of grief, trauma, and crisis. This will be assessed through the action assignments and case examples throughout the course (CACREP 2.F.1.l; 2.F.1.j; 2.F.5.l; 2.F.5.m; SC G.2.e; G.2.g)
- Utilize developmentally appropriate best intervention practices/modalities across the lifespan with individuals, families, groups, and in the community. This will be assessed through the action assignments & case examples throughout the course. (CACREP 2.F.2.f; 2.F.2.g; 2.F.3.e; 2.F.3.g; 2.F.5.1; 2.F.5.m; SC G.2.d; G.2.e)
- Analyze the roles within emergency services including school crisis response teams. This will be assessed through the action assignments. (CACREP 2.F.5.l; 2.F.5.m; SC G.2.d; G.2.e)

- Apply diagnostic criteria and skills. This will be assessed through the crisis & trauma assessments and the case examples. (CACREP 2.F.7.e; SC G.2.g)

Specific Course Assignments and Evaluation Criteria:

- Readings: Each student will complete all assigned texts and other readings as given in class each week.
- Dispositions: Each student will demonstrate dispositions consistent with an inclusive, multicultural, and ethical professional role in promoting well-being, healthy relationships, academic success, and career mastery.
- Attendance: Each student is expected to complete all scheduled weekly activities and be prepared and willing to participate in discussion boards and class exercises. If you miss more than two weeks of assigned modules you will be dropped from the course. The last day to withdraw from a class with a WC grade is October 16th.
- Action Assignments/Reflections: Each student is expected to complete 5 action assignments and reflections related to major modules of the class. Students should be aware that personal reflections help the material come alive as illustrations of the core concepts of the class. (5 assignments @ +25 each = 125 total points).
- Project: Each student is expected to successfully complete a final project (worth 100 total points – a rubric will be given). This is a self-selected topic, approved by the instructor, that relates to the student’s interest and career goals.
- Discussion Boards: Each student is expected to complete assigned discussion boards on topics that augment material of the class. Most weeks will include these discussions. (13 @ +15 points each = 195 total points).

Grading Scale:

Written assignments will be weighted as follows:

Action Assignments/Reflections	= 125 total Points
Final Project	= 100 total Points
Discussion Boards	= 195 total Points
 Total Points	 = 420 total Points

Final Grading on Written Assignments:

378 - 420 Total Points	=	A
336 - 377 Total Points	=	B
294 - 335 Total Point	=	C

ACADEMIC HONESTY REMINDER:

North Carolina Central University views academic honesty as a critical value protecting the transmission of knowledge. Academic dishonesty is a serious violation and includes providing/receiving unauthorized assistance with papers, projects, and exams; presenting, as one's own, another's words/ideas without acknowledgement; presenting the same papers/projects for credit in two classes without explicit professor permission; and using undocumented internet information. Academic dishonesty will result in a grade of "F" in the course.

CLASS ATTENDANCE POLICY:

Class attendance is expected of students at North Carolina Central University and represents a foundational component of the learning process in both traditional on-campus and online courses. Students should attend all sessions of courses for which they are registered for the entire scheduled period and are responsible for completing all class assignments. Instructors will keep attendance records in all classes.

If a student misses two weeks of online participation, I will report the facts to the student's academic dean for appropriate follow-up. It is the student's responsibility to inform the instructor of any authorized absence, and to make up all work as determined by the instructor.

COVID-19 Health and Safety Requirement for Wearing a Face Mask or Other Face Covering in the Classroom or Other Instructional Setting:

To create and preserve a classroom atmosphere, whether in-person or online, that optimizes teaching and learning, all participants share a responsibility in creating a civil and non-disruptive forum. At all times, students are expected to continuously conduct themselves in a manner that does not disrupt teaching or learning. Your responsibilities as a member of the North Carolina Central University community are outlined in the NCCU Student Code of Conduct (Code). The Code outlines disciplinary procedures, behaviors that are subject to disciplinary action, hearing procedures and the consequences that result from violating the Code.

In addition to community standards to which all students are accountable, the Code outlines the requirement to abide by all other rules, regulations, policies, procedures and guidelines issued by the institution. In consideration of the University's commitment to maintain healthy and safe learning environments during the COVID-19 pandemic, the University has issued the Operations, Recovery and Continuity plan. The plan highlights and details the University's preparations to safely open for the Fall 2020 semester and includes behavioral standards for in-class instruction, such as physical distancing, use of face coverings, and hand hygiene. However, in light of the ever-changing nature of the COVID-19 pandemic, the plan is subject to change.

Please be advised that face coverings are required while on campus and during in-person instruction as per NCCU's guidelines, and the State of North Carolina's Executive Order 147. The few exceptions to this requirement can be found in the Operations, Recovery and Continuity plan.

Any action by a student that interferes with the education of another student or interferes with the operations of the University in carrying out its responsibility to provide a safe and conducive educational environment will be considered a violation of the NCCU Student Code of Conduct.
